

Contents

Introduction	9
Chapter One: Narcissus and Echo in Ovid's Metamorphoses	19
1.1. The Origins of Narcissus	21
1.2. Echo — the Power of Language	23
1.3. Narcissus at the Spring	27
1.4. Ovid's Metamorphoses — Poetic Fiction or a Tale with Cultural Relevance?	42
Chapter Two: The Myth of Narcissus in the Context of Courtly Love	47
2.1. The Precepts of Courtly Love Retrospectively — Marguerite de Navarre's Heptaméron	51
2.2. Bernart de Ventadorn and his Domnas	66
2.3. Heinrich von Morungen and the Broken Mirror	81
2.4. Petrarca's Laurels	88
2.5. Are Ovid's Narcissus and Guillaume's Amant Two Sides of the Same Coin? — Le roman de la rose by Guillaume de Lorris	94
2.5.1. Allegory	95
2.5.2. Locus amoenus	98
2.5.3. Narcissus	100
2.5.4. Amant and the Crystals	103
2.5.5. Plato's Cave	106
2.5.6. Guillaume's "Superior Reality"	107
2.5.7. The Rose	110
2.6. Narcissistic Women and Men in the Doctrine of Courtly Love	113
Chapter Three: The Motif of Self-Knowledge in Female Mystical Writings	117
3.1. The Lives of Three Women Mystics	120
3.2. Female Mysticism and the Established Church	123
3.3. The Metaphor of the Mirror	129
3.3.1. Hildegard von Bingen	129
3.3.2. Mechthild von Magdeburg	133

The Myth of Narcissus and its Reception in Western Culture

3.4. The Mystical Union	141
3.4.1. Mechthild von Magdeburg	141
3.4.2. Hadewijch van Antwerpen	152
3.5. Medieval Female Mystics and Their (Narcissistic?) Mirrors	163
Chapter Four: Incest as an Instance of Narcissistic Desire	166
4.1. The Anima, Animus and Androgyny	168
4.2. The Concept of Incest and the Origins of the Incest Taboo	171
4.3. The Exchange of Women. Twin Cross-Dressing in Robert de Blois’ Floris et Liriope	179
4.4. Twin Incest in “Wälsungenblut” by Thomas Mann	196
4.4.1. Thomas Mann’s Relation to Psychoanalysis and his Myth Concept	198
4.4.2. The Wälsung Twins as Decadent Narcissists	200
4.5. Incestuous and Homosexual Desire(s) in Les Bienveillantes by Jonathan Littell	213
4.5.1. Debates around Les Bienveillantes	215
4.5.2. Littell’s Narcissistic Pervert	222
4.6. Narcissistic Incestuous Desire throughout the Ages	242
Conclusions	244
Works Cited	249
Name Index	263